

Common Types of Personal Injury in San Luis Obispo

Car Accidents

Injuries sustained in a car accident result in the greatest number of personal injury cases in the country. This is because when a car accident happens, someone was typically negligent or made some type of error.

Medical Malpractice

A medical malpractice claim may arise out of a surgical mistake, medication error or a failure in the requirement of a medical professional to adhere to the currently accepted standard of care.

Slip and Fall

A slip and fall case may be filed when a person slips and falls on someone's property if that property was not maintained in such a way that kept it free of hazards. Not all cases of a person coming off their feet will result in a lawsuit, but many do.

Dog Bites

If your dog bites and injures someone, you are liable for those injuries in most states. Dog bites can damage skin and underlying tissue, and cause permanent disability and/or disfigurement.
